Welcome to the
2013 CELC Symposium

Welcome to all of our presenters and participants in the 2013 CELC Symposium. Now that you are here, you may have many questions not directly related to the presentations.

This guide aims to anticipate some of your questions and to serve as a quick reference for you. The following pages contain information on transportation, communication, dining, shopping, and entertainment options. For those accessing this through a computer, tablet or smartphone, the Visitors’ Guide includes both internal and external links for ease in gathering information.

In addition to this Visitors’ Guide, when you arrive at the symposium, you will receive a copy of Your Quarterly Guide published by Where Singapore and the Singapore Tourism Board in your symposium welcome bag. This STB publication contains current information about events, shopping, dining and other attractions in Singapore.

At the end of this Visitors’ Guide you will find a brief section on what to do in the event of an emergency. We would like to suggest that you take a few minutes to peruse this page. Should you fall ill or need assistance while you are attending the symposium, please seek out our representatives at the Hospitality Table located outside of the auditorium and they will do their best to get you the help you need.

We hope that your time here at the CELC 2013 Symposium is both professionally and personally enriching.
General Information for Visitors

For those who are visitors to Singapore, welcome! As you may already know, Singapore is a vibrant multi-racial city-state-country. We hope your stay here is a pleasant one.

The Singapore Mindset: Singaporeans have achieved a great deal in the last 45 years and while you are here you will enjoy the benefits of their efforts. From the establishment of a water management system that provides clean tap water for both residents and visitors, to a network of public transportation that efficiently moves people around the island, Singapore’s successes reflect the unique values of Singaporeans. Singapore has a well deserved reputation as a clean city. With this in mind, please be considerate of the following during your stay here:

1. Treat water as a precious resource, which is not easily replaced.
2. Please ensure that your rubbish finds its way into a dust bin.
3. When in public spaces, please be respectful of those around you and keep your voices at an appropriate level.

All water flowing from taps is drinkable and on campus you will find water dispensers which offer both hot and cool water. Please feel free to fill and refill your own water bottle at these dispensers.

We strongly recommend that, as a visitor, you avail yourself of the public transport system if you are visiting some of the sites of the city. It is efficient and efficient. Having stated this, all forms of transportation in Singapore can become quite congested especially during peak hours. If you do not need to travel during these time frames, try to avoid them. If you do not have a choice, just keep a positive attitude and remember that you are experiencing the “real Singapore”. If you are traveling to the airport during a peak travel period, it is recommended that you leave for the airport a bit early to avoid traffic and that you refrain from riding the commuter trains or buses with luggage.

As stated previously, Singapore is a multi-racial, multi-cultural society which highly values harmonious co-existence. While you are here, we encourage you to forge new friendships with those attending the symposium and enjoy the variety of cultural exchanges you will have with your fellow participants. Savor the unique encounters which emerge within this amazingly diverse collection of World English speakers.

Singapore Botanic Gardens

The efforts to create the Singapore Botanic Gardens date back to the time of the early days of Singapore and Sir Stamford Raffles. In 1859 the Gardens were established at their present location and over time they became the locus of successful horticultural research. Located within the Gardens is the National Orchid Garden. While there is a charge for admission, the fee is nominal and the beautiful orchids are well worth the cost.

There are many stairs and hills that can assist you in your cardio-workout. Please be mindful to proceed at your own risk. Some of the roadways are very narrow in NUS and traffic travels at a brisk pace. In addition, the weather here can serious affect those exercising.
