BP Graduate Opportunities

We deliver the energy the world needs.
What could your role be?

Our BP Supply and Trading team is the commercial face of our global business. At our annual Recruitment Talk, you’ll have the chance to discover where your ambitions connect with ours, as you learn about the important work we do. In an exciting addition to this year’s talk, you’ll also hear what it’s like to work within our market-leading lubricants business. It doesn’t matter what your academic background or discipline is. If you share our commitment and curiosity when it comes to advancing the future of energy, we’ll have a programme for you.

During this session,

- Learn about our global trading activities from our business
- Hear about how each business (from Analytics, Trading Operations, Technology to Finance & Risk) plays a critical role
- Explore the impact and reach of our market-leading lubricants business
- Be engaged and participate in an interactive trading game
- Discover the graduate and internship opportunities with structured job rotations, training, development and mentorship
- Network with our current graduates, BP professionals and recent interns to learn about life and culture in our environment
Date: 30\textsuperscript{th} August 2018

Xin Yi’s view of how to contribute at BP

I really like this role as I get to speak to a lot of people, for example the traders, to find out what they’re doing.
I studied accounting at university but I wanted to go into something different – a bit more exciting. Trading seemed like a good fit. It may still be a male-dominated industry, but BP is making a conscious effort to foster female leaders, so I’m really looking forward to becoming a trader at the end of the programme.
