CODE OF CONDUCT FOR STUDENT LEADERS

NUS student leaders are recognised as elected or appointed leaders and are placed in positions of influence and authority. They are in effect, representatives of the various student organisations and hence, form an important link between the University and the general student body. In the course of carrying out their roles and responsibilities, they are expected to abide by the following code of conduct:

1. To comply with the Statutes and Regulations of the University.

2. To uphold the dignity and honour of the University.

3. To be fair, objective and impartial, and acting in the best interest of the University, the student organisation that is represented and the student community.

4. To exercise accountability to the University and the student community.

5. To conduct themselves responsibly, with mutual respect and integrity.

6. To lead by good example and be committed to the pursuit of excellence.

7. To manage and be sensitive towards the diversity within the NUS community.

8. To become effective members of society, country and the global community.
