

TLHE 2014 Programme

The Centre for Development of Teaching & Learning (CDTL) of the National University of Singapore (NUS) held its 7th International Conference on Teaching and Learning in Higher Education (TLHE) from 9 to 11 December 2014. This conference had a pre-conference workshop (9 December 2014) followed by 2 days of paper presentations (10-11 December 2014), that included keynote lectures, paper presentations on various sub-themes and poster sessions.

The conference aims to provide a platform to disseminate research findings on various aspects of innovation in educational approaches at tertiary level. In particular, it aims to focus on the ways in which theoretical positions and empirical findings on innovation can inform daily classroom practice, curriculum design, assessment, and other key aspects of education. At the same time, the conference invites contributions that aim to explore and share innovative educational approaches in order to enhance teaching and learning. The conference will be of relevance to various groups at tertiary level: academics, educational researchers, teacher educators, tertiary education administrators, curriculum developers, learning designers, educational technologists, and others.

Sub-themes:

- Assessment
- Classroom innovation
- Curriculum design
- Educational management
- Globalisation
- Information and Communication Technology
- Learners' perspective
- Scholarship of Teaching and Learning
