PROGRAMME DETAILS

4	Academic Content	Course title: Afropolitanism, Social Justice and Entrepreneurship Designed to inspire students to be global citizens, this course presents comprehensive insights into South African history, politics, culture, social justice and social entrepreneurship. The course connects the past to the present, discussing opportunities and challenges of transformation facing the country, the African continent and the world today. Through engagement and immersion in the local Cape Town context, students will reflect on values of social justice and responsibility, gaining insights into the interconnectivity between their own societies and the rest of the world. Visits to historical, heritage and entrepreneurial community sites will allow students to experience the vibrant and diverse cultures that influence and shape the character of Cape Town and South Africa, as well as expose students to 2 innovative initiatives communities are undertaking to seek solutions to social issues.
---	-------------------------	---

		The course will also include a field trip to Robben Island, the Slave Lodge, District Six Museum, and visits to community social entrepreneurship sites.
5	Eligibility Requirements	The course is open to students from diverse educational backgrounds, however students should have an interest in the following disciplines: History, Political Science, Sociology and Development. NUS' generic eligibility requirements apply, please see GRO website for details.
6	Accommodation	Students will be housed on UCT's on-campus accommodation. Each student will have their own room, and breakfast will be provided daily.
